

Register for super funds unable to accept payments via New Payments Platform on 1 July 2026

Last modified date: 29 October 2026

The following instructions outline the process for superannuation funds that may not be ready to accept employer contributions via the New Payments Platform (NPP) by 1 July 2026. Funds are required to notify the ATO by 30 June 2026, unless substantial implementation issues are identified after 1 July 2026.

Instructions:

Superannuation funds that will be unable to accept and reconcile employer contributions made via the New Payments Platform (NPP) from July 1 2026, must contact the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) by emailing SuperStreamStandards@ato.gov.au

- The ATO will require superannuation funds to provide:
 - reasons they are unable to accept employer super contributions via the NPP
 - specific blockers and delivery dependencies affecting readiness
 - actions already completed and currently underway to enable NPP
 - key milestones, implementation plan, and expected readiness date
 - the products and Unique Superannuation Identifiers (USIs) affected
 - a contact for follow-up on progress and timing
- If approved by the ATO, this register will be updated with the relevant fund information.
- Sending solutions should not make contributions via the NPP to these USIs until the readiness date has passed unless agreement has been provided by the superannuation fund.
- The register will be published on the Contributions V3 page on the ATO software developer's website and updated as required.

Note: There is no requirement to advise the ATO a superannuation fund is unable to process rollovers.
